The Michigan State Bar Foundation provides leadership and grants to improve access for all to the justice system, including support for civil legal aid to the poor, law-related education, and conflict resolution.

Making a Difference

Legal assistance provides solutions for consumer law problems.

Understanding legal rights and responsibilities is essential in today's consumer marketplace. Predatory lending, credit counseling abuse, identity theft or fraudulent leases are serious matters, particularly for the poor. These problems can also negatively impact a credit report even if the person was a victim of fraud and can limit employment opportunities, cause higher insurance premiums, and make it difficult to rent a place to live. Insurance companies, landlords, and even employers regularly check credit records to rate a person's financial responsibility. Timely legal assistance can help vulnerable families maintain essential needs such as housing, employment, and transportation.

Low-income persons benefit from civil legal help.

Nonprofit civil legal aid providers regularly help low-income clients learn about consumer law and prevent or repair damage consumer law problems cause. Additionally, civil legal services providers frequently bring cases to law enforcement's attention so that future victimization can be prevented. Below are a few examples of how the Foundation's legal aid grantees are providing needed consumer law assistance.

An elderly mother contacted Legal Services of Northern Michigan (LSNM) after she was sued for failing to pay a credit card she didn't own. An adult daughter with financial difficulties had opened an account using her mother's name without her mother's consent. The bills were being sent to the daughter's home, but the daughter got behind on the payments. Although the mother was in no position to help pay the debts and was not legally responsible for them, she was faced with the creditor's lawsuit. LSNM successfully got the lawsuit against the mother dismissed, protecting her modest assets from the creditor's reach.

A low-income family with young children was solicited at home to buy a learning product. The salesman falsely said he was sent by the school district, which required the children to have the product. The product was never sent to the family, but they received bills including finance charges for the product. The company sued the family and reported the delinquency on their credit record. The Michigan Migrant Legal Assistance Project intervened and obtained a judgment that the family did not owe the debt and helped correct the father's damaged credit report.

The Michigan Poverty Law Program (MPLP) works with local legal aid providers to help them assist low-income persons who have fallen prey to "refinancing" schemes which fraudulently take funds and property from financially-strapped families. MPLP also provides training and technical assistance in consumer law issues to local providers, including coordinating with advocacy groups in the statewide Consumer Law Task Force. This helps resolve many consumer issues affecting low-income clients. Additionally, MPLP manages the statewide legal services website at www.michiganlegalaid.org where legal aid organizations post consumer law and other legal educational materials for use by other providers and by low-income persons.

Bringing People and Resources Together

AOJ grants for small projects can have a big impact.

The Foundation awards Administration of Justice (AOJ) grants to nonprofit agencies to improve the administration of justice through law-related education, conflict resolution and the delivery of civil legal services to low-income Michigan families. AOJ grants often help innovative ideas get off the ground, allowing successes to be duplicated or materials to be shared with other organizations.

The Michigan Supreme Court Learning Center received an AOJ grant from the Foundation to create “Kid Justice Conquers Chaos” an interactive animated on-line computer game. The Learning Center worked with Ferris State University students and professors to develop the game. The game helps later elementary students learn more about the responsibilities, organization, and procedures of the Michigan court system and is aligned with the Social Studies Standards in the Michigan

Curriculum Framework. The game and an accompanying teacher’s guide, including lesson plans, can be accessed at the Learning Center or on-line at www.courts.mi.gov/plc. This innovative project recently received a Quest for Excellence Institutional Achievement Award from the Michigan Museums Association.

The Courtroom to Classroom Project by Neighborhood Legal Services of Michigan (NLSM) is another AOJ grant-supported project positively influencing students. NLSM staff, volunteer attorneys, and Wayne State University law students taught sessions from the national Street Law Program in Detroit middle schools. The project utilizes legal professionals as role models who interact with the students. In project evaluations, student comments included: “...now I know that I can go to jail for fighting. Fighting is not the way to solve your problems.”

2006 Fellows Reception

MSBF Awards Access to Justice Fund Grants

MSBF awards sixth round of ATJ Fund grants totaling $45,000.

The Foundation’s ATJ Fund receives donations from the ATJ Campaign, a fundraising effort established in 1997 as a partnership between the State Bar of Michigan, the Foundation and civil legal aid providers to increase resources for civil legal aid for the poor. The State Bar leads the ATJ Campaign which solicits both endowment and operations donations. The Foundation holds the ATJ Fund and receives, manages, and distributes the funds, including 2006 ATJ Fund project grants to:

Support a law Fellow at the MSU College of Law Rental Housing Clinic to provide low-income persons with education and legal assistance on housing issues;

Support the configuration of case management software to help legal aid programs track and manage pro bono cases and other technology needs identified by the statewide Legal Services Computer

Committee to assist legal aid services; and,

Support a statewide legal assistance centers conference as a forum for technical assistance and information-sharing for existing centers and others interested in establishing a legal assistance center.

Since 2000, the Foundation has awarded over $258,388 in ATJ Fund project grants to support civil legal aid for low-income persons in Michigan. As of this printing, the Foundation also distributed $583,633 in 2006 in ATJ Fund operations contributions earmarked by donors for particular legal aid agencies. More than $6 million in pledges and donations has been raised since the inception of the ATJ Campaign. thinks the Foundation could have grown to its present status without [Charlie Rutherford's] leadership."
